4 July 2011: For immediate release

SPEND A SUMMER EVENING AT ROSEMOOR GARDEN

On Friday 15 July you are invited to come and enjoy Rosemoor's renowned rose collection on a midsummer evening after the garden has closed to the general public. And during the accompanying gourmet dinner you will be serenaded by classical concert guitarist, David Jaggs.

On arrival, you can treat all your senses with a stroll around the fragrant rose gardens sipping a refreshing glass of Pimm's and enjoying the beautiful views and fabulous evening scents. Rosemoor's resident expert – Phil Scott - will be on hand in the rose gardens to give advice and answer any rose queries.

Then treat your tastebuds with a three course gourmet dinner served in the Garden Kitchen restaurant and incorporating some of the delicious fresh vegetables and fruit grown at Rosemoor. The menu includes tasty summer fare including local smoked trout, free range duck and homemade summer fruit tart or chocolate and raspberry torte.

The dinner will be accompanied by the subtle sounds of live music from classical concert guitarist, David Jaggs, who was trained by one of the world's leading classical guitarists, Manuel Barrueco. David Jaggs has played many major venues in the UK both as a soloist and in ensemble work.

Pre-dinner drink at 6.30pm. Dinner served at 7.30pm. Garden closes at 10pm
Cost: £35 per person, RHS Member: £32.50
